National Environmental Policy Act; Notice of Cassini Mission Record Decision

In furtherance of the Council on Environmental Quality regulation at 40 CFR 1505.2 and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) regulation at 14 CFR 1216.311, public notice is hereby provided that on August 12, 1997, a Record of Decision (ROD) was rendered pertaining to the Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS) for the Cassini Mission to Saturn. While the ROD completes the National Environmental Policy Act process, the "Go/No-Go" decision for launch of the Cassini spacecraft will not be made until all of the mission and flight readiness reviews are completed.

By way of background, in July 1995, NASA issued a Final Environmental Impact Statement, dated June 1995. In April 1997, the Draft SEIS was made available to the public. NASA responded to the comments on the Draft SEIS and issued the Final SEIS on June 27, 1997, with publication of the notice of availability of the Final SEIS on July 3, 1997. The prescribed 30-day waiting period ended on August 4, 1997. Five comment letters (1 Federal agency, 4 individuals) were received on the Final SEIS. The comments were evaluated and determined not to present significant new information or data relevant to environmental concerns and bearing on the proposed action or its environmental impacts.

After consideration of all of the information, as updated in the final SEIS, the alternatives evaluated, public comments received, and other technical and programmatic factors, the decision (documented in the ROD) is the selection of the preferred alternative. This alternative consists of completing preparations for the Cassini Mission to Saturn, launching the spacecraft on a Titan IV (SRMU)/Centaur from the U.S. Air Force Cape Canaveral Air Station, Florida, and operating the mission. The launch is planned to take place during the primary launch opportunity beginning in early October 1997, with a secondary opportunity beginning in late November 1997 and a backup opportunity beginning in March 1999.
